

GUIDELINES for an artists stay in the Babayan Culture House artist-in-residency

General information:

The Babayan Culture House AiR (BCH) is a Netherlands foundation and located in Turkey. The artist will be working in an authentic historical village in the heart of Cappadocia, where villagers still live the farmer life of hundreds of years ago. It's an Islamic religious environment where respectful behavior is important. And where men and women communities are more or less separated.

This means that any artwork, made in public, is exposed to a community that is not familiar with contemporary art. Anyhow, the villagers are very helpful, and the local handicraftsmen can give the artist good information how to work with the volcanic stone.

The climate of the Anatolian Heights is a dry land climate. January and February are the coldest months with snow. July and August the hottest (+35 C). Keep this in mind for the artists project planning. For that reason the caves have no big windows and are not very large.

Preparation:

Please stay in contact with the BCH about the artist's needs and preparations for executing the proposed art project. The BCH is making all efforts to get the artist to work as soon as possible and prepares as much as possible in advance, based on the information provided by the artist.

From the artist's arrival on, BCH expects the artist to develop the art project independently, based on the BCH services, existing facilities and appointments made.

Be aware of the fact that the artist cannot always obtain anything needed, because this as a farmer area with no professional art supply shops nearby (only to be found in Ankara - 300 km, or ordered from Istanbul). So be prepared for some practical changes in habits, planning and/or project approach. BCH advises the artist to bring the most essential and personal tools and materials or have it send in advance to the residency (see below).

The art project has to depend on the possibilities to work within the land climate, the different cultural circumstances in combination with the nature of the art project.

BCH services:

- A laptop on request for general use with WIFI.
- The artist can bring a laptop and make free use of the wireless Internet connection.
- The artist can have low cost daily and/or commonly artists meals in our house on request.
- Transport from our village by schedule with village bus or local taxi on call (fixed prices).
- The artist can rent a car/motor/motorbike/bike through BCH, for long-term reduced prices.

BCH environment:

BCH is surrounded by the historical Cappadocian landscape: churches, valleys and small historical villages. By foot one walks from the house directly into nature to discover the surroundings, or for art making. Empty caves or old ruins can be the artist's working space.

Villagers accept art works on their properties but we have to ask them and prepare them for requests like site-specific installation, in-situ works and photo/video shooting.

In the Cappadocian environment the artist can find several quarries where different stone types of volcanic material in range of hardness can be obtained: tufa, marble, travertine, onyx, obsidian, gray and red hard stone.

Shops & buying:

The village has only some small grocery stores where one can buy basic things for daily cooking and living. No art supplies are available in the village. In the nearby cities (10 km) the artist can find some materials for art making but not the whole professional range and not the first quality the artist might be used to find in the home country art-supply shop. Some better quality art materials can be ordered from Istanbul through an art supply shop; shipping takes at least three days. Be open to improvising.

Special Art Materials:

If the art project requires specialist or high quality materials, the BCH advises the artist to send this as a firm package to the BCH at least one month before the residency starts. The address is:

Paul & Willemijn, Babayan Culture House,
161 No. Ibrahimpasa Köyü,
Ürgüp 50390 Nevşehir,
Turkey.

The BCH reminds the artist, that any necessary art materials have to be bought and obtained from shops in the region. BCH does not give materials for free.

The Artist Project:

The artist works independently on his/her art project. The project was proposed by application and judged by a panel of the BCH Foundation on which the artist was invited for a stay.

If an artist decides to change the content and/or approach of the project, the BCH needs to be informed and provided with a new project paper and schedule. The BCH will decide again if the new project proposal can be supported in all its aspects.

The BCH facilities & supplies:

- Easels, tables.
